SNOWMASS ICE AGE DISCOVERY

SNOWMASS ICE AGE DISCOVERY

Did you know that Snowmass is home to the richest high-altitude Ice Age ecosystem ever discovered? More than 150,000 years ago, glaciers covered the area that would become Snowmass Village. In 2010, a bulldozer operator working in Snowmass unearthed the fossilized remains of a young Columbian mammoth. Soon after, scientists uncovered an entire fossilized ecosystem.

THE 2027 ZIEGLER DIG

Next summer, the diggers come back out. The Denver Museum of Nature & Science returns to Ziegler Reservoir for the Ziegler Dig, and this time the hunt goes deeper. Scientists will sift through ancient soil looking for new clues about how mammoths, mastodons and giant sloths lived here tens of thousands of years ago. And you don't have to just read about it. You're invited to come see the science up close and be part of the discovery. Find dates and visitor experiences at SnowmassIceAge.com.

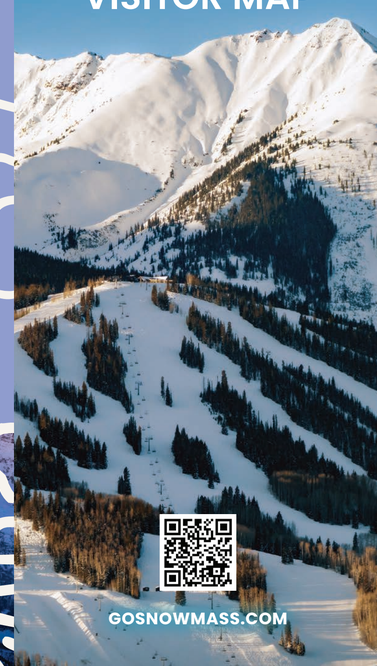

Until then, follow the Ice Age Passport Walk to art installations around the Village, or join a guided tour Tuesdays at 2:00pm. Details at SnowmassIceAge.com/Visit.
